Fritz Hauser is developing new compositions for Lucerne Festival that will be performed in both the Concert Hall and Lucerne Hall at the KKL, as well as at the Kunstmuseum Lucerne and Neubad. Architecture and acoustics have been incorporated into the conception, such that these new works will seem to have been composed specifically for these spaces, endowing the latter with a tailor-made, novel sonority. Whether a solo score or for a large ensemble, Hauser's own music is intended to present a counterpoint to the works of Karlheinz Stockhausen, György Kurtág, Bernd Alois Zimmermann, Peter Eötvös and Luigi Nono that will also be heard at the Festival.

Biography | Fritz Hauser, composer

Born in 1953 in Basel, where he currently resides, Fritz Hauser develops solo programs for percussion which he performs around the world, as well as interdisciplinary works with the architect Boa Baumann; the lighting designer Brigitte Dubach; the director Barbara Frey; and the choreographers Kinsun Chan, Joachim Schloemer, Heddy Maalem, and Anna Huber. His catalog includes works for percussion ensembles and soloists, chamber orchestra, and choir; sound installations (including projects for the Therme Vals, Architecture Museum Basel, Castel Burio Italy, Kunsthaus Zug, Fondation van Gogh in Arles, and Manifesta University of Zurich); scores for radio plays, and scores for films and readings.

Hauser's first composition was written for a percussion orchestra (Die Welle, 1986). This was followed by commissions from various foundations and ensembles, such as CIP Geneva, Pro Helvetia, Maxime Favrod/Nicati-de-Luze, Lucerne Festival, Synergy Percussion (Australia), Speak Percussion (Australia), the Lucerne Symphony Orchestra, Ensemble contrechamps, the basel sinfonietta, we spoke Percussion, and others, as well as realizations of installations and performances that involve the intersection of music and theater (Perspectives percussives for La Bâtie Festival in Geneva, Schallmaschine Basel, Schallmaschine Maximus for Augusta Raurica, and Schraffur for gong and theater, featuring more than 200 participants, for the Theater Basel). Hauser's main interest is in the unconventional use of traditional percussion instruments in combination with space and light.
